LITERARY SCENE Newsletter and Book Review

By providing data and analyses for governmental decisionmakers in the fields of economics, defense, and foreign affairs, the intelligence community has played a key role in determining U.S. interests and options in all strategic areas of the world. As this role of the intelligence community has become more significant—and more controversial—in light of various regional crises around the globe during the past two decades, a considerable body of literature has assessed not only the structure of the intelligence community but also the products of intelligence work and the consequences thereof. At times this literature itself has been the cause of controversy, at other times it has been simply inept, and occasionally it has been brilliant and has changed the way in which we look at much of recent history.

The Foreign Intelligence Literary Scene (FILS) is the only newsletter and book review devoted to the literature of foreign intelligence. Edited by Thomas F. Troy, a thirty-year veteran of the CIA, FILS is essential reading for anyone in government, business, or private life who is interested in intelligence.

- FILS reports and comments on the treatment of foreign intelligence in books, articles, dissertations, movies, television, and drama—indeed, in any medium of communication.
- FILS covers intelligence and counterintelligence, espionage and counterespionage, special operations, covert action, psychological warfare, deception operations, and terrorism.
- FILS examines these subjects historically—the ancient as well as the modern world, and everything in between—and as they relate to the world today—the entire world, not just the United States.
- FILS features news and commentary, from the intelligence point of view, on writing and publishing, new books, works in progress, periodical literature, the teaching of intelligence, the appearance of new archival material, and on problems and opportunities facing intelligence literateurs.
- FILS is published every other month and is sent to its subscribers via first class mail. It is issued in an attractive 8½" × 11" format, is illustrated, and contains news stories, features, interviews, and book reviews, as well as regular departments such as letters to the editor and a calendar of events.
- FILS is available now at the charter subscription price of $25 for one year. Kindly return the order form at the bottom of the following page.

FILS is published by University Publications of America, a leading academic publisher of books and microforms. UPA publishes briefs and arguments of the Supreme Court, hearings of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission, historical collections on oil and energy, and thousands of reports of the OSS, the CIA, and the Joint Chiefs of Staff. A complete catalogue is available upon request. Four of our
